Words by CHARLES TILDON SEMPERS, JR., Philadelphia, Pa.

Music by ARTHUR MITCHELL LITTLE, Washington, D.C.

The hour is come, our stay is o'er,
Our common path divides to-day;
We sing the adieu of '84,
And press each one upon our way.
With look regretful we o'ercast
The pathway of the vanished days;
Our thoughts dwell long upon the past,
And give to it their choicest praise.

To mem'ry o'er and o'er again
Its scenes come back in mellower light,
Its joys seem fairer now than then,
The sunshine and the sky more bright.
It holds the memory of friends
Whose names are dear forevermore,
And many a welcome face attends
The thought of days forever o'er.

These scenes — the background of the past —
Are dear to every loyal heart;
We bid farewell to them at last,
And from Old Phillips now must part.
Ah, many heroes here have stood
Where now about to part we stand, —
To battle for the great world's good
Have they gone forth through every land.

To each of us forevermore
May these an inspiration be,
And may the class of '84
Win noble immortality!
The hour is come, our stay is o'er,
Our common path divides to-day;
We sing the adieu of '84,
And press each one upon our way.

PRAYER, AND BLESSING.
